NO. 46

4TH OF JULY CELEBRATION

FINEST PARADE EVER HELD ON SIMILAR OCCASION.

United States Senator Penrose Made the Address at Conclusion of Parade.

The Independence Day celebration on last Saturday evening was a great success from start to finish. The parade was the best ever, having fully 500 men in line and was witnessed by a large crowd from all parts of the county and neighboring sections. The parade started from Springs avenue at 6:30 p. m. headed by Chief Marshal William McG. Tawney and his aides, C. O. Myers, Carl Oyler and R. E. Zinn and the Citizens' Band of Gettysburg. The first division was made up of the orator and guests, the municipal officers, school board, town council and members of the G. A. R., about 50 in number. The Gettysburg Drum Corps led the troop of local scouts and the Gettysburg Fire Company completed the division. The latter organization made a fine appearance. The apparatus was drawn by F. B. Deardorff's span of blacks and Kelly & Oyler's grays. The company was headed by Fire Chief A. B. Plank and at the rear of the division was Mr. Plank's son, Milton, dressed in a small fireman's suit, riding in his pony cart, decorated with Gettysburg pennants. The second division was marshaled by Morris Stansbury and was made up of The Knights of Pythias Band, Hanover, of 40 pieces. Company E. S. of V., Hanover; Company F. S. of V., New Oxford; Company B. S. of V., Gettysburg, and members of Battlefield Council No. 717. O. of I. A. Gettysburg. A goal led by Howard Ridinger bearing the legend "This is the goal that does the work," concluded this division.

The Arendtsville P. O. S. of A. captured the honor of having the largest turnout in line. Out of a membership of 108, there were 100 in the parade. They wore white shirts and trousers and white hats with a blue band. The order was headed by the Mountain Valley Band, Arendtsville. In this division were also the New Oxford Band and P. O. S. of A., Hanover, P. O. S. of A. Reserves and Washington Camp No. 414. P. O. S. of A. of Gettysburg. A feature being the large flag carried by a committee. This division was marshaled by Wesley I. Oyler, who had for his aide Edward Oyler.

All the organizations were in their parade uniforms and this added greatly to the effect. After the parade had covered the route lined out, those taking part were massed in the Centre Square with hundreds of other citizens to witness the concluding exercises. Congressman C. Wm. Beales was master of ceremonies. The Rev. J. A. Singmaster opened the exercises with a prayer, after which Congressman Beales introduced the orator of the day, Hon. Boies Penrose, United States Senator from Pennsylvania. J. Calvin Strayer, national vice president of the P. O. S. of A., and prominently mentioned as a Democratic candidate for Congress at the next election concluded the speaking. The Hanover Band played during the services which came to an end with the benediction.

Address of Senator Penrose.

We are assembled here to-day in accordance with a time honored American practice and custom to celebrate our natal anniversary. Some three million people scattered along the Atlantic seaboard in separate colonies, having little or no connection or cohesion, fought successfully the power of Great Britain and achieved their independence. They fought for representative government, for civil liberty, and for equality of all men. The struggle constituted the first successful effort in the long history of oppression for human rights and human liberty. The example went around the world. The French Revolution followed not long afterwards, and in successive years nearly every monarchical government in Europe encountered revolutions, which ended in advancing the cause of free government, the establishment of parliamentary institutions and the placing of limitations on autocracy.

The countries of South America were fired by the example of Lexington and Bunker Hill, and inspired by the noble figure of Washington, until to-day in the two Americas Republican institutions are established in name at least, and in practice in most cases. From the small beginnings of one hundred and forty years ago our development under the blessings of civil and religious liberty has been such as almost to transcend the imagination. To-day the anniversary of our independence is celebrated not alone along the Atlantic seaboard, but from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean; from the West Indies to Alaska; and across the Pacific to the islands of the seas, in Hawaii and the Philippines, where the Stars and Stripes float half way around the globe. From three million people we have grown to a nation of one hundred million, a people better educated, possessing a higher civilization, enjoying more of the comforts and luxuries of life, inspired by patriotism, filled with enterprise, and a spirit of progress such as has not been recorded in history.

I know of no place where Independence Day can be more fittingly celebrated than here. On the field of Gettysburg was fought the great battle which marked the turning point of the war. No other battlefield in the world is marked so extensively by monuments as is the Field of Gettysburg. Few battles present such romantic, picturesque and heroic features. On no other battlefield has there ever been heard a speech as eloquent as that of Lincoln. Here, indeed, is a shrine of patriotic inspiration, which every American should visit at least once, that he may imbibe fresh inspiration of patriotism and good citizenship, and return to his vocation and pursuits with a new determination to uphold those institutions for which such horrid sacrifices have been made.

It is well that patriotic orders and fraternities should participate on these occasions. Upon these organizations above all others is imposed the sacred duty of keeping alive our best patriotic traditions. We need them now more than ever.

This Republic was dedicated to peace. It seemed almost impossible that anything could occur to disturb our relations among ourselves. We were not a military nation. We were not armed. The only fighting that we seemed called upon to do was to battle the Indian wars on our frontiers as our population extended. We had no desire or need for foreign aggression or the acquisition of other territory. We were devoted to commerce and industry. We had a Supreme Court that was supposed to be a final tribunal of arbitration and judicial decision to settle all disputes among the States. Yet, in less than eighty years of our national existence, all civil tribunals failed and we came to a division among ourselves which could not be settled except by an appeal to arms.

"The men who fell here at Gettysburg gave up their lives to maintain the Union and to establish liberty throughout the land. They fought the greatest war in history, whether we regard the number of men concerned or the territory covered. Now we are witnessing another war greater than our civil war, involving most of the nations of Europe, a war which we all hope, in the interests of humanity and civilization, will come to an early end. But while we deplore the conditions on the other side of the ocean, we should not be led astray by the pacific talk of some people of the United States regarding conditions in our own country.

"The Civil War, following the complete breakdown of our institutions, ought to be sufficiently fresh in our minds to render us charitable in considering the dreadful conditions prevailing in Europe. Nor can we argue that because sixteen years have passed since the Spanish-American War, we are immune to war.

"The American people will not tolerate militarism. We are devoted to the sciences, the arts, to commerce and to industry. We have none of the pressing reasons of restricted territory, or of inherited prejudices to inspire us to war. We never have waged a war except for our independence or the national defense, or in the interest of humanity. But when we reflect upon our own history and look a little deeper into the years to come, it certainly would seem as if we ought to make reasonable preparation for national defense. We should make this preparation as a nation on the same principle that an individual keeps himself in good physical condition and makes reasonable provision for the safeguarding of his home and family by locking the doors at night, and by such other precautions as the neighborhood may require. Common sense should prevail in the consideration of this subject.

Washington urged that the nation prepare for defense as the best assurance for peace and urged a well-considered plan of military discipline for the whole people. Lincoln deplored the mighty scourge of war, but declared that if it had to continue until the issue was settled, he would bow to the will of the Almighty. Grant, at the close of the greatest war in our history up to that time, uttered the immortal words which echo the sentiment of every American at the present time: "Let us have peace." These great Americans embody the common sense sentiment of the American people upon this subject. "Let us have peace" is the motto of the American people, but while we earnestly pray for peace, and will do all we can to secure it, we would indeed be forgetful of our own history if we did not make reasonable preparation for defense.

"Arbitration treaties, Hague tribunals, disarmament so far as practicable may be all very well in their way, but let us consider in a very few words the condition of the United States in its relation to such suggestions of preventing war.

"We have developed a number of policies which have become national and fixed, which are incapable of arbitration, and which cannot be sustained unless we are prepared for national defense. They are directly against the interests of other nations, and frequently involve a reflection upon them not calculated to produce good feeling.

"In the first place, we have the Monroe Doctrine, in which we declare to the civilized nations of Europe, with crowded territories and with the necessity of extending and emigrating, that they must keep their hands off the South American countries. The Monroe Doctrine never has received official recognition from other countries, and may be said to be only tolerated. How long other countries will be willing after the war in Europe is over to be disbarred from taking possession of the enormously rich and fertile sections of the continents, unless we are prepared to defend our policy, is very questionable. The Monroe Doctrine, however, is more important to us than ever on account of the Panama Canal in its relation to Mexico and the countries adjoining the canal.

"Then, we have the neutrality of the Panama Canal, and the other international questions surrounding its operation, which we must be prepared to enforce or else permit the operation of the canal to be dictated by foreign nations. We have a demand from many of our people, and Congress has several times passed the law, to place a restriction upon the immigrants from foreign nations. This restriction is most obnoxious to the people of many countries in Europe, and it is not calculated to promote that international fraternity about which the peace advocates talk. Moreover, we go further and exclude certain Asiatics, and, as the nations of the Orient are awakening and arming, we have here a fixed national policy which we must be prepared to enforce.

"Then, for many years, we have had and hope to have again, a highly protective tariff, which keeps, to a large extent, the manufactures of other nations out of the American market. The American market is worth all the other markets of the world. We desire to retain it largely for ourselves, and at the same time, we want to build up a merchant marine which will carry our own products, and restore the United States to that dominating position in the carrying trade that it possessed before the Civil War.

"Finally, while protecting our own home market, we demand the open door in China, and here again we bring ourselves in contact with conditions in the Orient with our exposed and vulnerable frontier post in the Philippines.

"It would seem, therefore, on reflection that ordinary common sense would demand that we make reasonable and adequate preparation for national defense. We ought to have a large navy and an adequate army, together with a system of reserves, and such drilling and instruction among the people in general as can be had without interference with industry and commerce. Many persons think that it would require a war to teach the American people the stern necessity of these things. I would rather hope that the common sense of the American people, the most intelligent people in the world, would persuade them, on due reflection, as to the necessity of national preparedness, and that the next Congress will take preliminary steps looking toward this end. In building up this sentiment we ought to be able to look to the various patriotic orders of the country to help educate the people upon those vital matters."

Dinner Tendered Penrose.

Congressman C. Wm. Beales after the speaking on Saturday evening gave a dinner at the Hotel Gettysburg in honor of United States Senator Boies Penrose. Thirty guests were present, including members of the committee in charge of celebration, borough councilmen, school directors, newspaper men and members of Senator Penrose's party. After the feasting Postmaster Chas. S. Duncan extended the thanks of the community to Senator Penrose and J. Calvin Strayer of York, for participating in the exercises marking Independence Day. Both briefly responded, saying that they were delighted with the occasion and felt that Gettysburg was a most appropriate place to be at this particular time. Short speeches were made by Congressman Beales, Rev. Dr. J. A. Singmaster, Hon. W. A. Martin, R. C. Miller, Burgess Eicholtz and Samuel Spangler.

W. M. R. R. Wins Decision.

Judge Swope filed an opinion this week in the case of Annie K. Eline vs. Western Maryland Railway Company. The plaintiff sued the company for $20,000 damages by reason of death of her husband, J. Frank Eline, killed at a crossing near York when a train struck an automobile he was in. Suit was first brought in York county and abandoned while a jury was deliberating by a voluntary non-suit. Action was then begun in Adams county, and the railroad company took the position that under the statutes, action must be brought in county where accident took place or where principal place of business is located. York county is found to be the answer in both events and Judge Swope sustains the objections to the case in this county and entered decree in favor of the railroad company. Plaintiff was represented by J. Cookman Boyd, Esq., of Baltimore and J. Donald Swope, Esq., of this place, and the defendant by Chas. S. Durcan, Esq.

Retained as Inspector.

Jacob G. Slonaker is one of the inspectors in the revenue service retained by Internal Revenue Agent L. G. Nutt, Pittsburgh, who has been in charge of the New York division of the newly-formed secret service forces of the bureau. Seven employees of the Pittsburgh branch have been transferred to New York, and will be known as "special employees" in the service. Mr. Slonaker being one of them.

BUY A CHAUTAUQUA TICKET

BOOST YOUR OWN TOWN BY SUPPORTING CHAUTAUQUA.

The Advantages Are Many Times More Than the Price—Give the Children These.

Chautauqua begins on July 16. The ticket canvassers will see you on or after the twelfth (Monday). They are doing their part out of love for the cause. Help them along by lifting your tickets promptly. Remember that you are getting the biggest value for your money in the Chautauqua ticket ever offered. The program is exceptionally fine.

No season tickets will be sold after the opening of Chautauqua. Be sure to get your ticket in time. Single admissions make it much more expensive, more than double the cost.

The Junior Chautauqua will be a novel feature this year. See to it that the children are provided with tickets so they may have the pleasure and profit of this most delightful treat.

Special arrangement has been made to provide for the needs of the very busy people who have felt that they were at a disadvantage other years. They cannot come early and hence they were constantly crowded to the rear. Many of them expressed a willingness to pay a little extra for a good seat even if they came late. To meet this situation two hundred seats on one side of the tent are reserved for those who care to purchase them. What are not sold after the first session will be thrown open to the general audience. This is a perfectly fair proposition. The reservations are ten cents for each session or a dollar for the week. Remember only one side is reserved for the very busy or the aged who may care to be in the reserved block. On the other side the seats are just as good and not reserved.

We believe in our town. Let us all help to make this Chautauqua the big thing of the season, the best one yet. There are several thousands of towns having Chautauquas this summer. Mr. Pearson himself manages two hundred of them. Let Gettysburg get into the front rank in her enthusiasm for Chautauqua, the movement that The New York Independent recently characterized as "the most American institution in the world."

The Junior Chautauqua tickets the school children paid for in installments can be had now at the Compiler Office. Bring the card received from your teacher and exchange for a Junior Chautauqua ticket.

The Compiler Office offers the following chance to children and parents. To the first ten children or parents who subscribe for the Compiler for one year at $1.00 will be presented with a Junior Chautauqua ticket. You get the two. Compiler and ticket worth $2.00 for $1.00. Now let ten kiddies see which will be the first to take advantage of this offer. Must be accepted before next Wednesday evening, July 15.

Silver Wedding Anniversary.

Assistant Postmaster and Mrs. E. E. Slaybaugh celebrated their silver wedding anniversary on last Saturday evening, by entertaining their many friends and were extended felicitations over the happy event. Elmer E. Slaybaugh, a son of the late Register and Recorder Jeremiah Slaybaugh, and Miss Gertrude Meals, daughter of the late Frederick Meals, were married at the home of the latter July 3, 1890, by Rev. Joel B. Swartz. Miss Katie Schriver, now Mrs. John B. Willis, being maid of honor, and the late Dr. G. Frank Meals best man. The attractive home of Mr. and Mrs. Slaybaugh on Springs avenue was beautifully decorated in a color scheme of pink, white and green for the anniversary event. They have three children, Miss Mary, John and Elmer, Jr.

A Chance for Paved Streets.

A committee of the Town Council was recently appointed to confer with the State Highway Department on the subject of State aid in the building of highways. At the meeting of Town Council on Tuesday evening this committee reported that they conferred with the Highway Department. The Highway Department purchased the line of the old Gettysburg and Petersburg turnpike company running on Baltimore and Chambersburg streets and those streets are now part of the State's highways. The State aid plan provides that a community desiring aid in building a road shall present a petition, which shall be approved by the County Commissioners and then approved by the Department. Under that plan the State pays one-half, the county or borough each one-fourth of the cost, and of the one-fourth falling on the borough, three-fourths can be assessed from abutting property owners.

The plan proposed by Council is to prepare the petition and ask the approval of County Commissioners. The intention is to pave Chambersburg street from Washington street to the Square and Baltimore street from the Square to Steinwehr avenue, a total distance of 2,600 feet exclusive of intersections.

The Trolley Company can be held to build between the tracks and two feet on either side under their franchise and it has been estimated that the cost divided up in the proper proportions that the abutting property owner would be assessed at the rate of about $1 per front foot. The Town Council authorized the request to go to the Commissioners for their approval in time to present it to the Highway Department on July 21st.

The Highway Committee stated that the horse of the borough is too light for the work and after the borough's horse flesh had been well ventilated as to color, size and disposition, the chairman of the Property Committee was ordered to trade for a heavier horse.

Pavement notices were ordered to be sent to a number of property owners.

A concrete crossing on South street was ordered to be put down as soon as a 30 foot section of pavement is made.

Council decided to purchase the tank of A. B. Plank for putting oil on streets.

Council adjourned to July 22 when further action will be taken on the street paving project.

Death List of a Week.

STORY OF THE LIBERTY BELL AND HOW AND WHEN THE CRACK DEVELOPED.

Now on Its Way to the Pan-American Exposition at San Francisco, California.

The story of "The Liberty Bell" now on its way to the great Fair at San Francisco was recently told by Anna Hamilton Wood of Harrisburg, as follows.

A long, long time ago while our country was still under the rule of the English King it was decided that a big bell was needed to hang in the tower of the State House in the little Colonial city called Philadelphia. They wanted a bell big enough to peel out clearly and strong on holidays and other important occasions.

An order was therefore sent to England for such a bell to be cast. It was to be a sort of birthday gift for Philadelphia's fiftieth birthday. But there was some mistake made in the casting, for when it arrived here and was tested it cracked almost at once. Then some Philadelphia men melted it down and made it all over again two different times before it was fit to be hung and put in use.

One hundred and twenty-three years went by before it really became known all over our country as the "Liberty Bell." Yet before it had a name of its own it was used on June 7, 1776 when it rang out to call the people together to listen to the reading of the Declaration of Independence. That, as your school books teach, was a formal paper drawn up by the wisest and bravest men of their time to declare the intention of the Colonies to revolt against the stern and unjust rule of England. The long and bloody war of the Revolution had to take place before we could become a free and independent nation as we have been ever since.

Although the Liberty Bell was first cast in England, it has become very precious to us since that day when, high above the heads of the people, it, too, listened to the brave words of Richard Henry Lee. The next year it celebrated with its joyous pealing the first Fourth of July ever kept in America. The war was still going on, but the sound of the Bell gave fresh courage to fight until we should win. When the American Army was forced to leave Philadelphia by the enemy the dear old bell was taken down and carried to Allentown and hidden there in a church until it could safely be returned. It rang out the good news of the end of the war and its muffled voice mourned the death of Gen. Washington some years later.

It rang out a welcome to the great French General, Marquis de Lafayette, who did so much for the Colonies during the Revolutionary War. It tolled at his funeral and at the funerals of two of the early Presidents of our country. You see, its great voice was heard on all public occasions that the people of Philadelphia thought important enough to be worthy of the highest honor they could pay.

Yet away inside the metal, somewhere was that strange defect or mistake which the men of England who first cast it had left there. Little by little through the years it worked upon it and finally while tolling for the funeral of Chief Justice John Marshall in July, 1835, it broke open in a deep crack up its side. Its usefulness was over as a bell because from that day to this it has never been rung. But its voice was heard once again last February when a wonderful telephone communication was established between Philadelphia and San Francisco, a distance of 3,400 miles. The first voice to travel over the wire was that of our beloved Liberty Bell. A city official struck it with a hammer and the sound from the metal rang out loud and clear on the waiting ears at the other side of the continent.

It has made a number of journeys to Expositions and Fairs and now it is on its way to the great Pan-American Exposition. All along the route the loyal American people will give it welcome. It is kept under glass now and so you cannot trace with your finger, as once you could have done, the words cast upon its surface telling it to "proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof."

Men who know tell us that very slowly but surely our precious Liberty Bell is dying and must some day go to pieces. But as long as we are able to do so we shall guard it as

A dear dumb friend, its usefulness all past, In memory's silent garden, still precious to the last.

Rural Carrier Changes.

In a letter to Congressman C. W. Beales the Post Office Department explains certain changes in the rural delivery at Littlestown as follows:

Washington, D. C., June 22, 1915. Hon. C. Wm. Beales, House of Representatives.

My Dear Mr. Beales: I am in receipt of your letter of the 19th instant, inclosing a communication from various patrons of rural route N. 3, Littlestown, Adams County, Pennsylvania, against the transfer of that route to Hanover. Your statement that within the next few days you will forward a protest signed by a majority of the patrons against the change has been noted.

In reply I beg to state that in connection with a recent review of the service between Littlestown and Hanover it was found that by a more systematic arrangement of the routes and the elimination of useless travel through the omission of excessive duplication and unnecessary retracing, the patrons could be served with one less route, and in the carrying out of this plan it seems desirable to serve the greater part of the territory lying between the two offices mentioned from Hanover, which is the larger town and enjoys postal advantages not possessed by the office at Littlestown.

It is noticed that the protests presented by you are premised primarily on a reluctance to lose the services of carrier Charles R. Mehrling, who it is represented has been most painstaking in the delivery of the mail. In this connection I may state that it is not the purpose of the Department to dispense with the services of this carrier, as he will be transferred to Hanover, from which office he will continue to serve a large number of his present patrons, whereas the balance of them will be served by the remaining carriers at Littlestown.

As will be observed from the foregoing the objections so far presented have been largely based on a misapprehension as to just what service will be rendered under the new plan and it has been the experience of the Department in similar cases that the early dissatisfaction registered against the changes vanishes to a very considerable extent after the readjustment has become operative and the patrons learn that their protests were without substantial foundation.

I may add, however, that all complaints presented will be very carefully considered with a view to effecting such modifications in the proposed readjustment after it has become operative as may be shown to be necessary to promote the best interests of the service.

Sincerely yours, (Signed) JAS. I. BLAKESLEE, Fourth Asst. Postmaster General.

Good Racing.

At Griest Park, York Springs last week, 1500 people witnessed the matinee races, which were closely contested. A. A. Gruver, of East Berlin, was the starting judge, and Dr. C. L. Myers of York Springs, and Charlie Altland of Dillsburg, were the time keepers and scorers. John Shultz's horse "Paddy", in some manner unexplained hurt itself while being worked out and died several hours afterward. Mr. Trostle's "Robert L" broke its bit and ran away on the track, the driver Joel Griest, jumping from the sulky. The horse dashed among a number of buggies but no damage was done.

Adams Responsible for July 4 Noise.

Speaking of the Fourth Governor Brumbaugh recently said: "John Adams was responsible for the noisy and demonstrative Fourth of July celebrations we have had in the past. And he was one of the oldest men in the Continental Congress."

"He was in Philadelphia on the Fourth of July, 1777, and it seems that somebody remembered it was the first anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. An impromptu celebration was started in the streets and there was much ringing of bells, firing of guns and a great noise generally."

"They didn't have any firecrackers then," and John Adams wrote a letter to his wife—he used to write to her every day, good man—and the letter became public. The country took the cue, and along came our noisy Fourth of July. Next to Thomas Jefferson, it is said, Adams was the most dignified man in Congress. He should have known better than to start that noisy Fourth."

The Country's Debt.

The Census Bureau announces that the net public debt of the country in 1913 was $4,850,461,000, of which the national debt, less cash in the Treasury, was $1,928,564,000, or $16.59 per capita; the State debts, less sinking funds, totalled $245,942,000, or $3.57 per capita; the net county debts amounted to $371,528,400 and the debts of municipalities, less sinking funds, to $2,384,885,000 or $54.27 per capita. The total tax levies on real estate in 1912 was $1,348,841,000, or $13.91 per capita.

While the national wealth was increasing from 1904 to 1913 75 per cent. in eight years, or 115 per cent. in eleven years, the national debt rose 6 per cent., the State debts 44.5 per cent., city debts 114 per cent. and tax levies 86 per cent.

The expenses of the National Government grew 54 per cent. in the ten years from 1903 to 1913. In 1913 the States spent $15,000,000 more than their revenues, and the cities spent $138,000,000 more than they received.

Walking on All Fours.

Scientists tell us that our remote ancestors walked on all fours. Certain it is that we all begin locomotion in that manner. It is natural for a baby to crawl and during the first few years of life most children spend much time playing on the floor. In order that this natural disposition to keep near mother earth shall not prove injurious there are a few precautions which it is well to take.

For babies it is easy enough to spread a blanket or some similar protection on the floor and when they grow older a little railing some six feet square will serve to keep them within bounds until such a time as they can be taught not to pick things off the floor and put them in their mouths.

Carpets, rugs, and wooden floors are invariably contaminated by the dirt which is tracked in from the street. There are innumerable colonies of germs everywhere on the floors, some of these are almost certain to be disease germs. When children grow old enough to be given things to eat, unless they are watched they will not hesitate to pick up the food which has fallen on the floor or which they have laid there. This practice is genuinely risky and every effort should be made as early as possible to train the children that things which have fallen on the floor are dirty and must not be put in their mouths. It is surprising how early they will learn this if care is taken and a fresh supply of the precious tit-bit offered in the place of the soiled one.

The wise mother makes every effort to protect her children's food from contamination for many of the digestive disturbances which are so fatal in the early years of childhood may be traced to dirty food.

The old saying that we must eat our peck of dirt is a stupid and harmful one like many another of the old saws—Little Talks on Health and Hygiene by Samuel G. Dixon, M.D., L.L.D., Commissioner of Health.

Two Political Developments.

Two very interesting developments occurred in Pennsylvania politics last week. Both will be far-reaching in effect. One was the announcement in Blair county by Governor Brumbaugh that he meant to start his campaign for a local option legislature right away and would go into the counties to fight for men. The other was the announcement by Senator George T. Oliver that he was done with politics.

The Governor spoke at the Brumbaugh reunion and reiterated what he has said several times about being in deadly earnest for local option and that he would fight at the primary election next year for local option members.

In his announcement that he has retired from politics, Senator Oliver says in the Pittsburgh Gazette-Times in part: "It has always been Senator Oliver's expectation to relinquish active participation in politics at the earliest day that he could consistently do so regardless of incidental conditions or the particular campaign that might be on. The time has now arrived. For fifteen years it has been his good fortune, if not to dominate in Republican Councils or to lead in matters affecting that great party and the public, at least to be intimately consulted, to enjoy the confidence of many loyal lieutenants and party men, and to have the cordial co-operation of thousands of excellent citizens in all walks of life. But he feels that the requirements of continued relation with the stress of politics are necessarily and unavoidably of such a nature that, at the age of 67 and with two years of arduous duties still ahead of him in the Senate, he is entitled to be relieved from the position of the leader and to take a place in the ranks. Senator Oliver wishes it understood, therefore, that hereafter his part in politics will be confined to that which properly pertains to the duties and responsibilities of a citizen, taxpayer and businessman interested in the welfare of his city, his county, his State and his country, as distinguished from problems that are essentially of the party and its destinies."

HIDDEN DANGERS.

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Gettysburg Citizen Can Afford to Ignore.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are weak. Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Disordered kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy, or a thick, red, ill-smelling urine, full of sediment and irregular of passage.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 2 comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, suggest weak kidneys and in that case warn you of the danger of dropsy, gravel and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills are endorsed by thousands.

Here's Gettysburg proof.

D. F. Arendt, Fourth St., Gettysburg, says: "We have used Doan's Kidney Pills in our family and don't think there is any other kidney remedy quite as good. I suffered from kidney trouble for years. I had pains across the small of my back and in my sides and had to get up at night on account of kidney weakness. Doan's Kidney Pills rid me of all these troubles."

Block Signal Coming on W. M.

Assurance that 50 miles of the Western Maryland Railway, between Cumberland and Baltimore, would be equipped with block signals was given at the conclusion of the two-day session in Hagerstown by Staunton Ennis, who recently became general manager of the road. Mr. Ennis supplements his statement with the promise that the Western Maryland will not stop at the completion of this section, but would continue to install block systems over the entire road. It developed during the hearing that the Interstate Commerce Commission had suggested to the preceding management that they install the block signal system along the single track part of the road.

"THE WIZARD OF THE VIOLIN."

Our people will be interested in knowing that the only artist who appeared on this Chautauqua circuit last season who will be returned this summer is Elmer Crawford Adams, who comes at the head of his own company. Adams has well been termed "the Wizard of the Violin," for he is a master of the instrument.

Miss Blanche Maguire, the dramatic soprano, who is a member of the company, is truly a great singer. She sings Scotch, Irish and English ballads with equal effect. Her singing will be one of the features of this delightful program. The accompanist is Rollo Hudson, a most accomplished musician.

A HISTORY MAKING LECTURE.

The cry of the civilized world has been that the temple of civilization has collapsed by reason of the awful war in Europe, and everywhere the cry has been, "How shall we rebuild?" Montaville Flowers comes to this Chautauqua with his great lecture, "Rebuilding the Temple," and answers the question of the day.

He shows that it is not the first time the temple has fallen. But this time we had built it so much better than ever before. It was raised by myriads of industries, each specializing a part, and crowned by the most consistent religious, overlapping and riveted together. Civilization declared that it could not collapse again. And yet that is just what it did almost in a breath.

MONTAVILLE FLOWERS.

last summer. Thinking men are looking forward to the work of rebuilding this temple, and Montaville Flowers, one of the closest students and ablest orators on the platform, will discuss this work on the fifth night of our Chautauqua.

Montaville Flowers made an enviable name as an interpreter of Shakespeare and the drama, and he has equaled that fame by his work as a lecturer. He has been twice honored with election to the presidency of the International Lyceum Association, an organization of platformists.

SPRINGER, MASTER MAGICIAN.

There is something about a program of magic that appeals to mankind irresistibly. People like to be baffled. They like to believe that they can "catch" the magician. Springer presents a bewildering mélange of magic that will keep you alert every second.

Early Use of Gunpowder.

Reference is made to the first definite use of gunpowder in battle by Ernest Protheroe in his book, "The British Navy." The author says: "Of all the world's great battles Crey possesses a unique interest. The English only used three pieces of field ordnance. They were small cannon made of trees, bored and bound with iron hoops, and the missiles were of stone scarcely larger than cricket balls. Doubtless this rude artillery made far more noise than it effected damage. It was the long bow and the broadsword that won the battle, but nevertheless gunpowder was henceforth to play an ever increasing part in the strife of nations. Explosives wrought a vast change in fighting methods on land, for many of the old time weapons were rendered quite useless in face of death dealing ball and shot. Warfare afloat, too, would be revolutionized. Hitherto the fighting ships had been largely carriers of soldiers in order to board and fight as on land, whereas the time was at hand when ships could be riddled with cannon balls without the crews coming into actual contact."

Glacier Protection.

Protecting itself against a glacier is the peculiar problem that confronts the town of Valdez, Alaska. This glacier, situated between mountain masses several miles away, has proved dangerous in periods of long sunshine, when great masses of ice sometimes fall to the ground, releasing tons of water that had been held in pools and ponds on the glacier. The water rushing to the town picked up trees and boulders on the way, often doing considerable damage, as in 1911, when 108 structures were carried to the ocean. United States army officers conceived the idea of preventing the recurrence of such floods by the construction of a dike. The dike is in a general U shape, so constructed that the town lies within the arms out of reach of the water. It is 7,500 feet long and six feet wide, constructed of earth. During flood times guards patrol the dike ready to give warning if any weakness or break is discovered.—Technical World.

What After Safety?

Everybody from Dan to Beersheba is now thoroughly convinced that "safety first" is the proper thing. It may not always be possible to agree upon whose safety it shall be, but considered wholly in the abstract anybody caught putting anything ahead of safety in these enlightened days of peace and good will would have to dodge anathema the rest of his life.

Indeed, so amicably and universally settled is this problem of "safety first" that many are wondering if we shouldn't now stop talking about it and commence to consider what shall come after safety. Safety, although the first thing, is not the only thing. What shall we have for second? Any suggestion, however foolish, will be welcome.—Life.

Inner Life in Constantinople.

Constantinople has a deleterious effect upon Europeans. So at least declared a "great and highly gifted lady," mentioned by Grant Duff. She had the honor of being received by the sultan. "I hope you like Constantinople?" inquired the monarch. "Yes," said she. "but I find great difficulty in leading my inner life here." The sultan started, but, recovering himself, said suavely: "Ah, no one should drink water here without having it previously boiled."—London Chronicle.

This Player "Quick Study."

For remarkable memory it would be hard to outdo a strolling player of the eighteenth century, of whom Sir William Robertson Nicoll has written. For a wager he once undertook to memorize the whole of the next day's Daily Advertiser and accomplished his task by repeating every line in the journal, news, headings, advertisements and all in perfect order and without a slip.—London Trader.

Gentlemen Didn't Answer.

"Will the gentlemen please move up forward a little?" called out the polite conductor of the trolley car. "I won't," growled Mr. Grouch, who hung to a strap near the door. "Oh, I didn't ask you," said the conductor.—Buffalo News.

WHY not give your lad the same training?

"When I was a growing lad, and came upon many words in my reading that I did not understand, my mother, instead of giving me the definition when I applied to her, uniformly sent me to the dictionary to learn it, and in this way I gradually learned many things besides the meaning of the individual word in question—among other things, how to use a dictionary, and the great pleasure and advantage there might be in the use of the dictionary. Afterwards, when I went to the village school, my chief diversion, after lessons were learned and before they were recited, was in turning over the pages of the 'Unabridged' of those days. Now the most modern Unabridged—the NEW INTERNATIONAL—gives me a pleasure of the same sort. So far as my knowledge extends, it is at present the best of the one-volume dictionaries, and quite sufficient for all ordinary uses. Even those who possess the splendid dictionaries in several volumes will find it a great convenience to have this, which is so compact, so full, and so trustworthy as to leave, in most cases, little to be desired."—Albert S. Cook, Ph.D., L.L.D., Professor of the English Language and Literature, Yale Univ. April 28, 1911.

A New Model Typewriter!

The No. 9
OLIVER
The Standard Visible Writer

BUY IT NOW!

Yes, the crowning typewriter triumph is here!

It is just out—and comes years before experts expected it. For makers have striven a lifetime to attain this ideal machine. And Oliver has won again, as we scored when we gave the world its first visible writing.

There is truly no other typewriter on earth like this new Oliver "9." Think of touch so light that the tread of a kitten will run the keys!

CAUTION!

The new-day advances that come alone on this machine are all controlled by Oliver. Even our own previous models—famous in their day—never had the Optional Duplex Shift.

It puts the whole control of 51 letters and characters in the little fingers of the right and left hands. And it lets you write them all with only 28 keys, the least to operate of any standard typewriter made.

THUS WRITERS OF ALL OTHER MACHINES CAN IMMEDIATELY RUN THE OLIVER NUMBER "9" WITH MORE SPEED AND GREATER EASE.

17 Cents a Day! Remember this brand-new Oliver "9" is the greatest value ever given in a typewriter. It has all our previous special inventions—visible writing, automatic spacer, 5 1-2-ounce touch—PLUS THE OPTIONAL DUPLEX SHIFT, SELECTIVE COLOR ATTACHMENT and all these other new-day features.

YET WE HAVE DECIDED TO SELL IT TO EVERYONE EVERYWHERE ON OUR FAMOUS PAYMENT PLAN—17 CENTS A DAY! Now every user can easily afford to have the world's crack visible writer, with the famous PRINTER, that writes like print, INCLUDED FREE IF DESIRED.

TODAY—Write For Full Details and be among the first to know about this marvel of writing machines. See why typists, employers, and individuals everywhere are flocking to the Oliver. Just mail a postal of once. No obligation. It's a pleasure for us to tell you about it.

THE OLIVER TYPEWRITER CO.,

Cor. Walnut & 10th Sts., Philadelphia, Pa.

You can rent an Oliver Typewriter 3 months for $4.00.

WARNING!

This brilliant new Oliver comes AT THE OLD-TIME PRICE. It costs no more than lesser makes—now out-of-date when compared with this discovery.

For while the Oliver's splendid new features are costly—we have equalized the added expense to us by simplifying construction.

Resolve right now to see this great achievement before you spend a dollar for any typewriter. If you are using some other makes you will want to see how much more this one does.

If you are using an Oliver, it naturally follows that you want the finest model.

50,000 More Local Agents Wanted

Top Pay for All or Part Time

Here is a chance of a life-time for one person in each of the 50,000 cities and towns to help us supply the big demand for the new model Oliver "9."

Write at once for "Opportunity Book" FREE that shows how you can win both profit and prestige. How you can secure exclusive control and sale in your home community. Learn how we give you a sample Oliver "9" on the same attractive basis as 15,000 others who have already been awarded and are now profitably working Oliver agencies.

No experience is necessary. So do not delay and let someone else get your territory. Write for particulars at once.

Summer Weddings.
Magee—Tipton.—A very pretty home wedding took place on Wednesday of last week when Miss Eleanor Frederica Magee and Harry Spangler Tipton of Elmira, formerly of Gettysburg, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert J. Magee, in Elmira. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. R. Lew Williams in presence of only the immediate families. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Elizabeth Magee and the groom by Samuel E. Stewart of Philadelphia. The bride wore a traveling suit of Belgian blue faille with hat to match with sand-colored trimmings. Her bouquet was a shower of bride's roses. The maid of honor wore a white voile dress with an old rose bolera and a rose-colored hat. She carried pink sweet peas. Mendelssohn's Wedding March was played by Miss Lena Magee, of Corning, a cousin of the bride. After the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served. Covers were laid for 14 at the bride's table. The decorations in the dining room were in pink and white, roses being used for the centerpieces. The place cards were hand-painted slippers with filices of the valley. In the other rooms, laurel and palms were used for the decorations. Mr. and Mrs. Tipton left for a two weeks' wedding trip, first visiting relatives and friends in Gettysburg, and after August 1 will be at home to their friends at 309 Columbia street Elmira. The bride is well known in Elmira being a graduate of the Elmira Free Academy and the Elmira Teacher's Training School. During the past year Miss Magee has been teaching at Miss Norton's kindergarten on West Second street. Mr. Tipton's home was formerly in Gettysburg, being a son of June F. Tipton of this place, but for the past eleven years he has resided in Elmira where he holds a responsible position with the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Wiest—Butler.—George Wiest and Miss E. Josephine Butler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Butler of Edge Grove were married last Sunday afternoon at the Conewago Chapel parsonage by Rev. Charles Koch. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rickrode, sister and brother-in-law of the bride. After the ceremony a wedding dinner and reception was held at the home of the bride's parents at Edge Grove. They will reside in Hanover.
Little—Bixler.—E. W. Little and Miss Margaret Bixler, both of Hanover, were married at the Presbyterian parsonage last Friday evening by Rev. F. E. Taylor. Mr. and Mrs. Little returned to Hanover last evening and will make their home there.
Rupp—Redinger.—Donald Z. Rupp, a former resident, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Rupp of West Middle street, and Miss Ruby Redinger of Akron, Ohio, were married at Burlingame, California, Monday morning, July 5th. Immediately after the ceremony they went to their newly furnished home in Burlingame. Mr. Rupp has many friends here. Mr. Rupp is employed as a pressman with the Sunset Printing Company of San Francisco, California.

Shipman—Barnes.—Minor B. Shipman, son of the Rev. and Mrs. W. A. Shipman, Johnstown, well known here, and Miss Margaret Barnes of the same city, were married in Altoona, after eloping to that place in an automobile. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. O. S. Fraitz. Shipman is studying law.
Shildt—Werner.—George A. Shildt and Miss Mary L. Werner were married in St. John's Lutheran parsonage, Littlestown, Sunday, July 4th by the pastor, Rev. J. M. Lau. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Shildt of near White Hall, and the bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Werner, tenant on the De-lone farm near Square Corner, Mt. Pleasant township. They will go to farming next spring.
—Miss Elizabeth Rummel accompanied her brother, John F. Rummel and family on an automobile trip to Johnstown, Pa., and Youngstown.

NON-PARTISAN ANNOUNCEMENTS.
FOR PRESIDENT JUDGE OF THE 51ST JUDICIAL DISTRICT, J. L. BUTT, Of Gettysburg.
Subject to the Primaries under the Non-Partisan Act.
To the Voters of Adams and Fulton Counties:
In announcing my candidacy for the nomination for President Judge of the Fifty-first Judicial District I desire to state that I consented to become a candidate because of the number of members of the Bar who urged me to do so and pledged me their support, and while I had the matter under consideration assurances of support and approval came from voters all over the county and district urging the step, and confiding in their assurances I consented. The office of President Judge is the highest honor in the gift of the people of this district and carries with it the gravest responsibilities. A Judge must not only know the law and be a student of the law, but must be without prejudice and bias in the administration of the law, the rights of the humblest citizen must be as sacredly maintained as those of the most exalted or of the great corporations. He must weigh all matters carefully so that only justice and righteousness is done. The non-partisan law aimed at the highest judicial ideal in the separation of the Bench from politics and party organizations. I pledge myself to the highest ideals of justice and right in the discharge of every duty if nominated and elected to preside over the Courts of this district and as an assurance of such pledge let the life I have lived in your midst speak for itself. I will highly appreciate all support.
Most respectfully yours,
J. L. BUTT.

FOR PRESIDENT JUDGE OF THE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS OF THE 51ST JUDICIAL DISTRICT.
DONALD P. McPHERSON, Gettysburg.
Subject to the Non-Partisan Primary.
In announcing my candidacy for President Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of the 51st Judicial District, I wish to thank my friends who, without regard to party, have so generously expressed their approval of it and to assure every voter of Adams and Fulton Counties that I shall appreciate his suffrage and support.
The Judgeship is now non-partisan—made so specifically by Act of Assembly—and if nominated and elected to that high office it will be my endeavor to observe the spirit of that act and to administer the duties of the office with fidelity and impartiality to the end that the law may be enforced and justice done.

Postmasters' Salaries.
The salaries of 163 postmasters were adjusted July 1, according to increase or decrease of business. The Peace Celebration at Gettysburg ran the receipts from July 1, 1915, to July 1, 1914, to $22,830.33 and from July 1, 1914, to July 1, 1915, they fell to the normal amount of $19,653.28, and on that basis the salary of Postmaster Duncan was decreased from $2700 to $2500. The salary of the Littlestown postmaster was increased from $1500 to $1600.
Convention of Short Hand Men.
The Court Stenographers' Association of Pennsylvania was in session in Gettysburg on Wednesday and Thursday and spent all the time between business sessions on the battlefield. Col. H. C. Denning of Harrisburg, who has reported many sessions of court in Adams county, had charge of all the arrangements and was responsible for the success of the meeting.

STOP

—Roasting to Death Over a Red-Hot Stove

What's the use of getting "all net up" when you're cooking a meal from a stove that's like a small furnace. Why don't you go today to your local dealer and

Get a
NEW PERFECTION OIL COOK STOVE

—the stove that heats when heat is wanted and don't spread it all over the room so that you're fairly suffocated. Think what it means on a sizzling hot day to simply shut the heat off as soon as the meal is cooked, but still have a stove that is ready for instant use when the next mealtime comes around.

The New Perfection Oil Cook Stove saves time, money and labor. It lights and regulates like a gas stove and, with the separate oven and fireless cooker, is equal to it in cooking power. You can broil, roast, bake, boil and fry; heat water for wash day and irons for ironing day—in fact, do anything any other stove will do. The combustion chimneys prevent all smoke and smell and the improved wick outlasts the ordinary kind. It will certainly pay you to go today and get acquainted with a New Perfection.

LUCK VERSUS SENSE

By HAROLD CARTER.

"You are an American. Do tell me something about yourself!" said Miss Edith Derry to John Trumble, as they sat side by side in the conservatory of Mrs. Langford's London house.

They had danced three times together—three times in succession, and the girl seemed to have forgotten all about her other partners. As for John—he had made no other engagements since his hostess introduced him to Miss Edith an hour before.

John looked out into the big saloon, where five hundred guests were chatting, lounging, or swaying to the strains of the Gypsy band.

"What shall I tell you, Miss Derry?" John asked.

"Everything!" answered the girl vivaciously. "How you came here. How you know Mrs. Langford. I love to hear real stories of life."

"If I told you, you would think I was romancing," said the young man.

"Try me!" answered the girl promptly.

"I came to England," said John Trumble, "from Massachusetts."

"I thought you came from America," said the girl.

"Massachusetts is in America," John explained patiently. "Two years ago I had two thousand dollars and an idea. The idea is for the improvement of guns—big guns—to prevent the riding from wearing out and destroying the guns' usefulness. I worked out my idea and saw that it was worth a fortune."

"It is one thing to know your idea is worth a fortune and another to convince a government. I couldn't convince my government because it was working out a similar idea of its own. So I came to England and tried to convince your government. Well—I haven't convinced it yet."

"What a shame!" murmured the girl, watching the young man closely.

"They sent me from pillar to post. The chief of the ordnance department seemed to be a Mr. Langford—our host. He put me off and put me off. If I could have seen him I know he would have bought the gun. But he wouldn't see me. I came to understand, after several weeks, that he had no intention of seeing me. Maybe he was too busy, or maybe he couldn't be bothered. Anyway, I gave up hope of seeing Mr. Langford. Do you know him?"

"Slightly," answered the girl.

"Am I to go on? Good! Well, yesterday I paid my landlady my last dollar in the world. I have just my ticket back to Boston—that's near Massachusetts, you know. It is a third-class ticket. I shall arrive in Boston seven days from tomorrow morning, without a penny to my name, and with the knowledge that I have the secret of revolutionizing artillery, which nobody will look at."

"Yesterday I Paid My Landlady My Last Dollar."

"But how did you come here?" inquired the girl.

"I was coming to that," said John. "This evening being my last in London, I thought I would take a stroll through the fashionable quarters and imagine that I had sold the gun and had a check for a hundred thousand pounds in my pocket. I had on my evening clothes, to heighten the illusion. Passing a house with an awning over the steps, I asked a friendly policeman what was happening. He told me that Mr. Langford was giving a ball."

"Is that the Mr. Langford of the war office?" inquired.

He told me that it was. And then a humorous idea came to me. I had tried to see Mr. Langford for a number of weeks and had spent a good deal of board money in the process. Why shouldn't I go into Mr. Langford's house?"

"This is most interesting!" exclaimed the girl. "I know what you are going to say. Why shouldn't you beard this lion in his lair and demand that he see your gun?"

John shook his head. "No, I don't take advantage of men in that way," he answered. "I thought that I would let Mr. Langford bestow a good dinner on me and an evening's gaiety. So I entered. The butler announced my name to Mrs. Langford. She did not know me, but she thought she had invited me, for she gave me the most charming smile. And—I have had supper."

"What a shame!" murmured the girl.

"Why?" inquired John.

"Because I haven't," she said frankly.

"But I am quite capable of eating another," admitted John. "You see, during the past week my fare has been somewhat—well, depleted."

The girl promptly rose. John offered her his arm. At that moment she seemed to him the sweetest and most wilful, charming girl in the world.

"Do you mind my saying something?" he inquired, as they sat together at a little table in the supper-room.

"Is this another confession?" inquired the girl, looking at him archly.

"In a measure—yes," he answered. "Since I have been here tonight I have discovered an additional reason for regretting that Mr. Langford so obstinately refused to give me an opportunity of showing him the model of my gun."

"Meaning?" the girl inquired; but the look in the young man's eyes answered her. She laughed and blushed, and then, to cover her confusion, raised her glass of champagne to her lips and sipped at it.

"Suppose he sees your gun?" she inquired.

"Then I don't see how he can help buying it, if he has brains in his head instead of wheels," John answered. "But he won't—unless he sends me a letter by special messenger before ten o'clock tomorrow morning, or recalls me by wireless from midocean, by flying machine."

"But if either of these events could happen?" the girl persisted.

"Then," answered John, gravely, "I should ask permission to call on you. What would you do?"

"I?" answered the girl. "Why, I should say that I should be delighted to have you meet mother."

"Only your mother?"

"Well, perhaps myself," she admitted.

"Where would this be?"

"At number 15 Edgemere gardens," said Miss Derry. "Are you making a note of it on your cuff? Why, you told me it couldn't happen."

"Ah, but the day of miracles may come again," said John. "I devoutly wish it would," he added under his breath.

The girl looked at him, and her manner suddenly changed. She burst into a peal of rippling laughter and rose from the table.

"Well, you certainly have gratified my wish to hear a story," she said, taking his arm. He led her back into the ballroom. "And so this is good-by?" she asked.

"Good-by," said John, bowing, and left her.

He went home and paced wretchedly up and down his little room. He had not exaggerated when he told Miss Derry he was penniless. He had spent four months in England, and they had been thrown away. Now he must go back to America and begin his life anew.

He had not thought it possible that he, a man of nearly thirty years, could fall in love at first sight. But he loved this girl, and he knew that, deep down beneath the flippancy of her manner, there was a nature to be awakened by love. If only he had succeeded! He knew that wealth would be his, and with it the chance that every man demands by right—to woo the girl he loves.

He went to bed and slept fitfully, awaking in the cold light of a foggy November morning. For the moment the events of the past night seemed like a dream. Then his eyes fell upon a little pink ball program, and he remembered his folly.

What was it but folly to have loved when he could never see the girl again?

He dressed and, having breakfasted in his room, packed his things. In half an hour he must take a cab drive through the fog to the railroad station. He would never see London again, or what had made the gray old city suddenly dear to him.

Suddenly the door-bell pealed, and a few moments later, a messenger boy stood before him, holding out a letter. John tore open the envelope.

"Dear Mr. Trumble," he read.

"You said that you must have a flying machine or a message by special delivery before ten o'clock this morning if you were to see Mr. Langford. Well, I spoke to Mr. Langford about you last night, and he says he is very sorry for the delay, but he has been intending to see you for several days past. He says if you will postpone your journey he will see you at the war office on Wednesday next at eleven o'clock and give your model a full trial."

"You see, he is my uncle, and I live with him when I am not at 15 Edgemere Gardens."

"EDITH DERRY."

Slingshot Bullets.
In the ancient times bullets were not shot out of rifles, but from slings, which were very dangerous weapons in the hands of skilled warriors.

Acorn-shaped bullets of lead have been found in the ancient Roman fort at Ambleside, near Windermere. Hitherto the sling-bullets have only been found on one other Romano-British site, the hill site of Birrens-walk in Dumfriesshire.

In his "Report on the Exploitation of the Roman Fort at Ambleside," Professor Haverfield refers to the lake district in Roman times as "a tangled chaos of hills in which wild hillmen deeded Rome and Roman ways," and to the Roman fort in Borsarsfield as "a strategic point on a distant frontier."

Father of Medicine.
Aesculapian was styled the father of medicine and the god of medicine with equal propriety, as it is not certain whether he was half god or mere man. His pedigree is involved in the mazes of mythology. He is represented as having practiced medicine so successfully as not only to have prevented the death of the living, but to have recalled the dead to life. Tradition says that Jupiter, for some offense, slew him with a thunderbolt, and after his death he received divine honors. One of his whims was to invest the serpent with a sort of sacred character as the symbol of veneration and also because of its supposed power of discovering healing herbs. A heroic sized statue of him in Berlin represents him as leaning on a staff around which is coiled a huge snake that rests its head in friendly fashion on his arm. Aesculapian had two daughters, whose names are preserved in modern English—Hygieia and Panacea.—Philadelphia Press.

When Connecticut Owned Chicago.
Connecticut once claimed the territory Chicago now occupies. This was at the close of the Revolutionary war, when what is now Chicago was only a ruined fort, built long before, and called Che-cau-gon. In 1783 Massachusetts, Connecticut, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia claimed to own the territory west of them as far as the Mississippi river, although the territories of Massachusetts and Connecticut were interrupted by parts of New York and Pennsylvania. The line between Massachusetts and Connecticut came a little north of what is now Chicago. It was Maryland that reduced these huge domains. Having no western territory herself, she refused to accept the articles of confederation unless the other states would agree to cede the western territories to the confederation itself, to be made in course of time, into new states.

Rise and Fall of a Mining Town.
A curious instance of the latter day rise and fall of a mining town developed at Hosmer, in the Crow's Nest district, Canada. Coal was found and a mine opened without regard to expenditure. In all over $1,000,000 was put into the operations. Many promising seams were cut, and so sure were the engineers of the quality and quantity of coal to be reached that a double tunnel, with a side air passage, was driven the whole length. Expensive dipples, tramways and a washer were constructed and a battery of 240 coke ovens built to take care of the washed slack coal product from the mine. However, the coal seams proved to be so broken and irregular that operations were entirely too expensive and were abandoned. As a consequence the town of Hosmer, which had a population of about 1,000, is now a deserted village.

A-Multiplication Trick.
Here is a little trick in multiplication that may amuse you. Ask a friend to write down the numbers 12345679, omitting the number 8. Then tell him to select any one figure from the list, multiply it by 9 and with the answer to this sum multiply the whole list—thus, assuming that he selects either the figure 4 or 6:

Select 4X9=36	Select 6X9=54
12345679	12345679
36	54
74074074	4882716
2097037	6173855
4444444	6666666

You see, the answer of the sum is composed of figures similar to the one selected. Any figure used will turn the same trick.

Dogs of War.
In the British army the Airedale terrier is used extensively. His coat is of such nature that it is suited to any climate and he is a highly intelligent dog with a wonderful power of scenting and hearing, is of a desirable size and is often used as a scout or sentry as well as an aid to the Red Cross service. The Airedale can readily distinguish the smell of his master from that of a stranger. These military dogs are taught not to bark. When they scent the enemy they give a low growl and often will stand like a pointer. They are of great service as night sentries.—Argonaut.

Cause and Effect.
"Miss Dawker," said Professor Jobling with a hesitant manner, "a psychic impulse prompts me to ask you if you will be my wife."
"Something of the same sort struck Mr. Billings last night, professor, and the result prompted me to say 'Yes'."
—Baltimore Sun.

The Bait.
Father—I'm very much afraid that Mable will elope with that young rascal. Mother—I don't think so, dear. I reminded her last evening that girls who eloped got no wedding presents, and I feel sure that my words sank deep into her heart.

Sarcastic.
Eusaband—After all, civilization has its drawbacks. People in the savage state seldom get ill. Wife (sweetly)—I wonder if that's the reason you're so healthy.

Musical Note.
Host—Must you leave so soon, Mrs. Tootles? I thought you were very fond of good music. Mrs. Tootles—I am.—Musical America.

Feeling Blue.
Bill—The fools are not all dead yet. Jill—Oh, brace up, old man! You're not feeling bad, are you?—Yonkers Statesman.

ADAMS IS COMING BACK.
No greater guarantee of quality could be given a Chautauqua attraction than the management gives to Elmer Crawford Adams by returning him to this circuit this year. He is the only artist who appeared on this circuit last season who is to be repeated.

ELMER CRAWFORD ADAMS.

Adams is truly a wonderful violinist and has been since he was a mere child. He not only plays the highest class of music, but he recognizes the demand for the popular and does a number of "stunts" with the violin that are always appreciated.

He will be supported by his own company this year—Miss Blanche McGuire, dramatic soprano, and Rolla Hudson, pianist and accompanist.

HARRY LONGSTREET OF THE DUNBAR SOIREE SINGERS IMPERSONATING HARRY LAUDER, THE SCOTCH COMEDIAN.

VARKONY-HINES COMPANY.
A company of Chautauqua artists that will attract more than passing attention is the Varkony-Hines Company, consisting of Florian Varkony, Gabriel Hines and Miss Elizabeth Oliver.
Florian Varkony, the bass-baritone.

GABRIEL HINES.

finished his education in Berlin and Vienna. He achieved a veritable triumph in "Carmen" in Budapest. For three years he was bass-baritone in the Budapest Royal Opera House. He has a voice of beautiful, resonant quality, and his enunciation is distinct.

Gabriel Hines is one of the most accomplished pianists now before the public. He is not only an artist on the instrument, but he is also a composer of note, having been awarded the second prize of $1,500 offered by the directors of the Panama-Pacific Exposition for the best American opera. There were 492 contestants. His opera is called "The Voyage of the Pilgrims" and traces the westward course of national development from the landing of the Pilgrims in 1620 to the San Francisco Exposition. This opera is being produced during the great exposition this summer. Mr. Hines is head of the music department of the Boys' Preparatory School at Swarthmore, Pa. Miss Elizabeth Oliver, the third member of this company, is a soprano with a splendid voice, and she is also an accomplished reader, the latter talent adding much to the program.

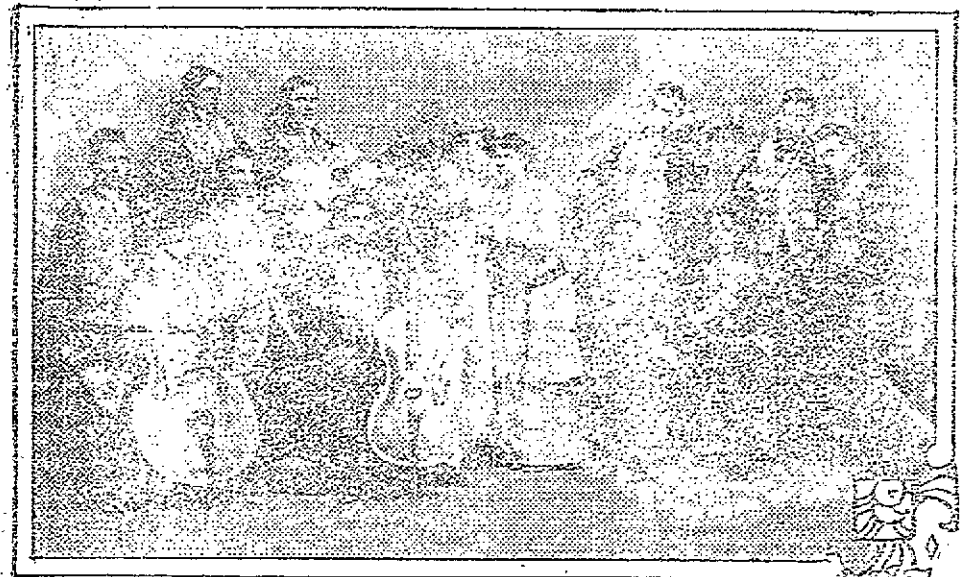

The will of the late Henry Graybill, known as the "Hermit of South Mountain," was probated in Hagers-town and leaves his estate of $1800 to be divided equally between the Orphans' Home and the Washington County Hospital.

BANJO-MANDOLIN SECTION, COLANGELO'S BAND.

Colangelo's famous Italian Band will be one of the big attractions on our Chautauqua program, giving two concerts, one in the afternoon and one at night, on the fourth day.

The band also has an orchestra section, which appears in special costumes, and also is accompanied by two vocalists, a soprano and a tenor. The organization is headed by Signor Luigi Colangelo, one of the most successful young music conductors now touring America. A cornet trio will be a feature.

Programs of Music and Mirth

1—Elsie Mae Gordon. 2—Judith Hampton Lyndon. 3—Waino Kauppi. 4—Charles Clark Fuller.

The Chautauqua Entertainers will give two splendid programs on the second day of our Chautauqua. The company is composed of four people.

Miss Elsie Mae Gordon, the reader, is an accomplished artist. She has had extended experience in the work and has an enviable record of success. Decidedly out of the ordinary will be the work of Miss Judith Hampton Lyndon, who sings quaint songs of the southland, accompanying herself with the banjo. Waino Kauppi is usually referred to as "the boy cornetist." He is a Finn by birth and is a remarkable cornetist, having played many important engagements both in Europe and America. The quartet is completed by Charles Clark Fuller, the pianist and accompanist, who is a thorough musician.

OUR TOWN AND PEOPLE IN THE CAMERA'S EYE

If you have never had a good chance to see yourself as others see you while you are walking about the streets of this town just make your plans to take part in the parade on the opening day of the Chautauqua, and that night you will be able to sit in the audience and watch yourself go by.

The Chautauqua management has arranged for a novel feature this year, to be known as chronophotographs. These pictures will be taken on the opening day and will show the parade and also a number of prominent buildings about our city as well as views of the crowds in and about the big tent on that day. On the opening night these pictures will be shown on the screen on the Chautauqua platform, and at the same time a brief lecture will be given by Mr. Robert Carels (who takes the chronophotographs) regarding the wonderful possibilities of the camera.

"REBUILDING THE TEMPLE."

One of the greatest lectures we will have the pleasure of hearing on our Chautauqua this summer will be "Rebuilding the Temple," by Montaville Flowers, who is one of the ablest and most eloquent speakers before the public today.

"A piled shot in Sarajevo! An arch-duke falls with his wife! And the whole temple of civilization falls with them. Today the divisions of the guard revel in unspeakable mutinous fratricide. Tomorrow the delirium will end, and once again we shall rebuild the temple. How shall we rebuild it now?"

No more vital, gripping message could be offered. It challenges the best thought of all nations.

BIG TIME FOR THE KIDDIES.

The Chautauqua we are to have here this summer is not alone for the grown-ups, for extensive plans have been made for the junior Chautauqua. This year this department is to be made still more interesting and worth while.

This year the boys and girls are to organize themselves into a junior town, of which they will be the citizens. There will be a commission form of government for this town.

On the last day they will present the "Pageant of Average Town," in which the week's work will be shown. It will be given with special costumes provided by the association. This pageant will show many of the ills that affect the average town and will show the final triumph of the work, directed by Wake Up and Clean Up, two characters impersonated by children, as will be many other characters.

The junior Chautauqua motto this year is: "I Am Proud of My Town. Is My Town Proud of Me?" This junior work will assist town and children to become proud of each other in years to come.

J. A. Bolen of York Springs has been appointed by the State Highway Department to take charge of the Menallen township road leading from Heidlersburg to Biglerville. He will assume his new duties at once and make necessary repairs.

Help for Those Who Have Stomach Trouble.

After doctoring for about twelve years for a bad stomach trouble, and spending nearly five hundred dollars for medicine and doctor's fees, I purchased my wife one box of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, which did her so much good that she continued to use them and they have done her more good than all of the medicine I bought before.—SAMUEL BOYER, Folsom, Iowa. There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years, doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Traveling Man's Experience.

"In the summer of 1888 I had a very severe attack of cholera morbus. Two physicians worked over me from four a. m. to 6 p. m. without giving me any relief and then told me they did not expect me to live; that I had best telegraph for my family. Instead of doing so, I gave the hotel porter fifty cents and told him to buy me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and take no substitute. I took a double dose according to the directions and went to sleep after the second dose. At five o'clock the next morning I was called by my order and took a train for my next stopping point, a well man but feeling rather shaky from the severity of the attack," writes H. W. Ireland, Louisville, Ky. Obtainable everywhere.

Twenty-five Cents is the Price of Peace.
